Meeting the challenges of Agriculture and Forestry with Commissioner Bob Odom

Faced with rapidly escalating catfish imports, the Department of Agriculture and Forestry and the Louisiana Catfish Promotion and Research Board are launching an American catfish awareness campaign.

The latest figures show 2001 imports into the United States of primarily Vietnamese catfish, known as basa, increased to 17 million pounds, nearly two-and-a-half times the 2000 import figure.

"This basically represents 10 percent of the U.S. market or roughly what Louisiana produces in fillets," Agriculture and Forestry Commissioner Bob Odom says. "So, in effect, the imported Vietnamese fish displaced Louisiana's production.

"At the same time, we saw decreases in acreage, production and farm value of catfish in Louisiana from 2000 to 2001. I feel sure that some of that can be attributed to the low price of the imported basa."

A survey by the department's Weights and Measures division found that 21 percent of Louisiana restaurants are selling either foreign or a combination of foreign and domestic catfish. The shank fillets imported from Vietnam are usually found mislabeled in the United States as "basa catfish" or "catfish fillets."

The consumer awareness campaign is beginning with a logo decal that restaurants can place in their front windows declaring, "We proudly serve 100 percent All-American Catfish." The red, white and blue decal is 4 inches by 6 inches in size, and is available at no charge to dining establishments who serve domestic catfish.

The department will send a simple contract to restaurant owners who wish to participate in the campaign that says only American catfish will be served while the decal is displayed in the window, Odom says. The restaurant does not have to serve only Louisiana catfish; any American catfish will qualify for the program. The contract also gives the department permission to go in and verify whether the restaurant is serving American catfish.

"If in the future the restaurant chooses not to serve domestic catfish, they can contact my office and we'll revoke the contract and they can remove the decal from their place of business," he adds.

A list of restaurants serving domestic catfish and participating in the consumer campaign will be published later.

In Louisiana, farm-raised catfish contributed $39.8 million to the state's economy in 2001, down from $47.8 million in 2000. Acreage dropped from 14,390 in 2000 to 13,312 in 2001, and production went from 67.1 million pounds in 2000 to slightly more than 64 million pounds in 2001.

The LDAF survey found that of 1229 establishments questioned in Louisiana, 722 are selling American catfish and 134 are selling Vietnamese basa. There are 72 places selling both American catfish and Vietnamese basa, and 238 did not sell any fish.

"We see this as an opportunity to drive those American numbers up even more," Odom says. "When consumers see that their favorite restaurant may not be serving a domestic product, we hope they'll request it and help keep our catfish farmers in business."

FFA officers conduct 2002 statewide tour

The week of February 18-22 was National FFA Week, always held in conjunction with George Washington's birthday to honor him as being not only a great statesman but also being an agriculturalist.

To celebrate this special time, the Louisiana state FFA officer team held their annual Goodwill Tour, traveling along with the FFA State Executive Secretary Bradley Leger, throughout the southern half of Louisiana. The purpose of the tour is to promote FFA and agricultural education.

Throughout the week the state officers made stops at various schools, agribusinesses, and businesses that support FFA. Some of their activities of the week included visiting the Port of Lake Charles, the Port of Baton Rouge, and the Port of New Orleans, touring a feed store and visiting Diamond W Ranch in Welsh, visiting the Louisiana School for Agricultural Sciences in Marksville, meeting with Gov. Mike Foster where he issued a proclamation for National FFA Week, visiting with Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom, visiting the state Department of Education and touring the amazing aquaculture center at Booker T. Washington High school in New Orleans. They also had the opportunity to host a reception on the LSU Baton Rouge campus to honor those individuals from the LSU College of Agriculture and LSU AgCenter who provide support to FFA.

Leanna Becnel, state FFA president said, "The State Officer Team had a very eventful and educational week. Not only did we accomplish our goal of spreading the word about FFA, we had many great experiences that will stay with us throughout our lifetime."

FFA was founded in the 1920s by students wishing to provide leadership training for high school students studying vocational agriculture. Today there are 457,278 FFA members in 7,312 chapters found in every state, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands. FFA is a diverse organization, operating in rural, urban and suburban schools. Students aged 12-21 enrolled in agricultural education programs are eligible for membership. For more information, visit the national Web site at www.ffa.org.

This article was written by Leanna Becnel, 2001-2002 Louisiana State FFA President. She is currently a senior at Thibodaux High School. Some of her FFA activities include participating in state livestock judging, state prepared speaking and state parliamentary procedure contests. Her plans are to attend Louisiana State University this fall to major in Animal Science. She feels that FFA is an organization really dedicated to students and that through involvement in FFA, students gain experience that they will be able to use in any walk of life.

4-H'ers teach lessons to peers at annual junior leadership conference

State 4-H officers and leaders taught leadership skills to their peers during the annual Junior Leadership Conference held recently at Camp Grant Walker.

"This is the first time for 4-H members to plan and conduct a two-hour class on leadership at this camp," said LSU AgCenter 4-H specialist Joan McCrory.

Traditionally, state 4-H officers and leaders assisted professionals in planning and presided over the sessions at the conference, but those sessions generally were taught by adults.

This year the young leaders actually planned, organized and taught lessons on developing communication skills and talents, sharing leadership roles with adults and planning community projects.

Approximately 200 members representing 4-H Clubs in most of the parishes across Louisiana participated in the event.

The conference included a combination of large group meetings and smaller concurrent sessions and workshops.

"It is important that everyone at this conference use the opportunity to develop your leadership potential," said LSU AgCenter Vice Chancellor Paul Coreil.

Participants were challenged by Coreil to recruit at least one person to become a member of 4-H, so those people also can develop their potential.

4-H is the youth development program of the nation's land-grant university system. It is operated in Louisiana through the LSU AgCenter and employs a variety of activities designed to help youth expand their leadership abilities and cultivate other valuable life skills.

During sessions, 4-H members also were active in presenting skits on communication skills, discussing ideas about making posters, developing a promotional message to be presented to participants and making other presentations.
